Hi Adam,

Apologies, I meant to send this to you as discussed earlier this week / last week.

Anyway, as discussed and agreed verbally - both today and previously (and now I am aware you off on holiday tomorrow - therefore it this may well become significantly more important in case anything crops up urgently in your absence) - please can you re-confirm by reply to this email (this time in writing) that you authorise me to act and corresponded, write, communicate on your behalf, via verbal or written correspondence, and without any reservation of rights by you whatsoever (to protect myself as discussed), in regards to any and all business matters relating to you, myself, and RANSQUAWK (or any connected or other company you are or have ever been involved in) and that you do so in perpetuity, save only where you advise me in writing at some point in the future that you wish to revoke your such agreement to all the terms detailed herein.

Relatedly, I will of course endeavour to keep you informed / copy you in on correspondence and discuss matters with you prior to actions being taken, but that you agree by your confirmation of your agreement for me to act in the way and ways requested herein, that this is not a requirement of your agreement for me to act in any instance whatsoever.

Reciprocally, I can confirm that I agree for you to act on my behalf on exactly the same terms as requested herein from yourself.

Please confirm your agreement to the above and that you have provided me with email addresses that I can utilise on your behalf in your name accordingly.

I copy Jason Earl in to the email effectively as a 'independent witness to our reciprocal agreements made here'.

Will call you know to advise you of this email and again my apologies for the late hour.

Kind Regards

George Busfield
