George,

That is interesting you claim you have tried to contact me a "dozen times in the last week". Upon receipt of your Friday email, I have had one missed call from you. I find it hard that a qualified accountant would confuse the numbers twelve and one to be equal. However, if you must insist this be the case then so be it, as I would hate to be making further "inaccurate allegations" as the "legal responses" would only keep me up at night.

Given the fact that for the last year Evgeni and Laura are no longer with us, thus stifling development. Before this I have been deeply involved in the office move that separated us from Mr Singh and Mr Schnieder and other politics, thus amount of investment into IT operations has been heavily restricted. Net net we've not managed to migrate to WebRTC as hoped. Therefore I'm confused how we can claim R&D credits when we've been too busy fighting other battles. Nevertheless, I will reach out to you shortly so that we can discuss the matter.

Furthermore, please do not lecture me about "my delay" in getting back to you. You've blocked me on Whatsapp until today which hardly helped the situation, and you've taken 11 months to do the accounts while charging £6900/pcm for a service that has not materialised.

Jase.

Jason,

As per and related to the below – please kindly call me asap.

There is potential for significant Research & Development Tax Credits as can be offset against taxes due but your input would be materially beneficial to the estimation and details as are required by the HMRC to qualify for such.

Regards

George.

Subject: URGENT & PURSUANT TO NOW NUMEROUS REPEATED ATTEMPTS TO CONTACT YOU

Importance: High

Dear Jason,

I have now tried to contact you at this point perhaps near a dozen times in the last week or so.

And sadly aside a single email you have sent in such time – as I am informed only included many negative, false and inaccurate allegations – at least as best I understand as of today (given personally I have not yet had chance to read but been advised accordingly) - I have nonetheless still received no reply to any of my messages to you despite these numerous attempts.

Whilst I have also been accordingly informed that your email inaccuracies likely warrant a corrective, and likely formal legal response, this email (and the inherent urgency portrayed herein) seeks not to address such matters, but only to try and attain your response / reply such that I / the Accountants at Versa may engage in a professional conversation with you regarding IT development and Corporate Governance matters over recent years and are as may currently be at hand.

Your input is required so as to expediate matters and/or to provide support and/or detail to the current assumptions and/or possibilities and/or opportunities as are perceived to likely provide significant progress and value to the relevant entities via R&D Credits or otherwise.

Therefore please kindly call me on my mobile asap such that I can discuss accordingly and then duly pass on your views / commentary to Versa to input to the various Accounts as are effectively now completed pending such input from yourself as related to the matters indicated or as otherwise.

Your delay in responding is causing unnecessary difficulties and may result in significant financial harm to the related entities as are referred to herein.

Perhaps to assist and/or encourage a prompt response, noting the ethos of your prior email as I informed, I am currently working gratis for March, as I have similarly been for Jan and Feb 2019, due to the hindrance / restrictions as have been unfortunately imposed on me in such time (formal confirmation of such provided to relevant parties).

In any event, and disregarding any decline in our personal relationship, and/or in my health, I am still trying to assist the business and related entities as best I can, in the finalisation of accounts or otherwise.

Therefore please kindly respond as requested asap.

Thanks.
George.
