FYI - For those involved.

On this note, no one has done anything to address the HMRC matters I keep raising? I'm angry this still remains outstanding in my name while other debits like credit card debt are piling up. George / Adam, are we going to pay these, or am I just going to be left with these indefinitely? I'd like this sorted in the next couple of weeks otherwise I'll have to take further action to protect myself from the repercussions of this extreme inept mismanagement since shares got misappropriated.

Other staff and I have not had any shares to date, and I find it ridiculous that certain entities continue to feel they are entitled to the benefits of a 52% shareholding, while others like myself continue to bear company debts. This shareholding was only achievable because of assistance from myself, Lints and Alec. None of us have any shares and nor many other staffing matters remain outstanding. It is particularly frustrating when I'm well aware these shares were initially obtained in using less than a kosher procedure.

I'm tired of waiting. You've had a year of excuses, so will draw a line under this in the coming weeks if it's not addressed. Otherwise, I can call it a day for this massive farce and wrap things up because there's no need for me to be chased / hassled for this. I understand it won't be an issue because I do have it on record from Mr Voce stating this years accounts should not be delayed.
